June 5, 2006

Trude Bennett (Maternal & Child Health)
Karen M. Booth (Women’s Studies)
Elyse Crystall (English)
Maria DeGuzman (English)
Sherrel Kleinman (Sociology)
Andrew J. Perrin (Sociology)
William H. Race (Classics)
Steven B. Wing (Epidemiology)

Carolina Campus

Dear Colleagues:

Thank you for your letter of May 30, in which you seek clarification of a statement in my May 5 letter to Judith Wegner concerning the importance of academic freedom. Though I have received a number of thoughtful comments about the letter, you are the first to ask for clarification of this point, which I believe expresses a belief that defines Carolina and has been widely held here for generations: That is, that no individual or group – on or off campus – should be allowed to obstruct the academic freedom of our faculty.

This cherished principle applies to all of our donors and potential donors, and everyone associated with Carolina, including me. I trust that all of you share this belief and that we can work together to ensure that our campus remains a place in which a wide variety of faculty intellectual views can flourish.

Sincerely,

Bernadette Gray-Little
Dean

cc: Chancellor James Moeser
Provost Robert Shelton